

Vol. 45, No. 1

CONNECTICUT HISTORY

Spring 2006

ARTICLES

- |                          |   |    |
|--------------------------|---|----|
| Mary Beth Baker          | Nathan Hale: Icon of Innocence  | I  |
| Richard Moss             | Jewish Farmers, Ethnic Identity, and Institutional Americanization in Turn-of-the-Century Connecticut | 31 |
| Adam Wolkoff             | Creating a Suburban Ghetto: Public Housing at New Haven's West Rock, 1945-1979                        | 56 |
| William F. Sullivan, Jr. | Battle for the Brass City: The Waterbury Strike of 1919   | 94 |

ESSAYS

- |                 |  |     |
|-----------------|--|-----|
| Timothy Collins | The Hessian Elm: The Revolutionary Memoir of a Tree                  | 114 |
| Judi Houpt      | Voices of Connecticut Veterans: Don Moss and an Artist's View of War | 124 |

THE CONNECTICUT CURRICULUM

- |                   |   |     |
|-------------------|---|-----|
| John Day Tully    | Debating a Hero: Teaching Nathan Hale             | 130 |
| Mary Beth Baker   | Nathan Hale: The Documents                        | 134 |
| Matthew Warshauer | Nathan on the Web: A Review of Internet Resources | 141 |
| Lisa Sillitto     | Connecticut Connections: The Hale Homestead       | 145 |

EXHIBITION REVIEWS

- |   |                                 |     |
|---|---------------------------------|-----|
| Mystic Seaport, Black Hands, Blue Seas: The Maritime Heritage of African Americans | Reviewed by Kazimiera Koslowski | 149 |
|---|---------------------------------|-----|

- |  |                           |   |
|--|---------------------------|---|
| Noah Webster House & West Hartford Historical Society, Bristow: Putting the Pieces of an African-American Life Together | Reviewed by Rebecca Furer | I |
|--|---------------------------|---|

- |  |                            |   |
|--|----------------------------|---|
| Lyman Allyn Museum, Commerce and Culture: Architecture and Society on New London's State Street | Reviewed by William Hosley | I |
|--|----------------------------|---|

EXHIBITIONS OF INTEREST

BOOK REVIEWS

- |   |                                    |   |
|---|------------------------------------|---|
| Nancy Hathaway Steenburg, Children and the Criminal Law in Connecticut, 1635-1855: Changing Perceptions of Childhood                                   | Reviewed by Christopher W. Schmidt | I |
| James Lomuscio, Village of the Damned: The Fight For Open Space and the Flooding of a Connecticut Town   | Reviewed by Raechel Guest          | I |
| Preston Maynard and Marjorie B. Noyes, eds., Carriages and Clocks, Corsets and Locks: The Rise and Fall of an Industrial City - New Haven, Connecticut | Reviewed by Robert S. Wolff        | I |
| David A. Weir, Early New England: A Covenanted Society   | Reviewed by Ulrike Kirchberger     | I |

NOTEWORTHY BOOKS