

CONNECTICUT HISTORY

Vol. 46, No. 1

Spring 2007

ARTICLES

William F. Sullivan, Jr.	"born to be hanged": What Runaway Apprentice Advertisements Reveal about Connecticut's Master Craftsmen in the Early Republic	1
Ann Y. Smith	A New Look at the Early Domestic Architecture of Connecticut	16
Michael T. Urbanski	Money, War, and Recruiting an Army: The Activities of Connecticut Polonia During World War I	45

ESSAYS

Catherine R. Blondel-Libaldi	Rediscovering the Litchfield Law School Notebooks	70
Anthony Brandi	Voices of Connecticut Veterans: John Czaplicki: An Unflappable War Hero	83
Kendall Wiggin	Connecticut State Library Spotlight	92

THE CONNECTICUT CURRICULUM

William F. Sullivan, Jr.	The Connecticut Curriculum: Understanding Labor and Economics in the Early American Apprentice System	95
Matthew Warshauer	Apprenticeship and Runaways: The Documents	100
Elizabeth Rose, Erica Zamsky Hunt, Anita Ellis	Teaching About Slavery with Runaway Slave Advertisements	117
Bruce Reinholdt	Apprentices and the World Wide Web: A Review of Internet Resources	128

EXHIBITION REVIEW ESSAYS

Historical Sites and the Meaning of History: A Consideration of the Old State House and the Exhibit "History Is All Around Us" By Matthew Warshauer	13
Developing Historical Understanding in Students: New Perspectives at the Old State House By Alan S. Marcus	13
An Enlightening Space: The Old State House By Peter Hinks	14

EXHIBITIONS OF INTEREST

BOOK REVIEWS

Helen Schatvet Ullman, trans., Hartford County, Connecticut, County Court Minutes, vols. 3 and 4, 1663-1687, 1697. By Katherine A. Hermes	148
---	-----

NOTEWORTHY BOOKS

150